Solution of problems Gearing of fractions The introduction of equations involving two unknown quantities and their application to the solution of problems AMERICAN HISTORY SEVENTH YEAR To satisfy a demand for completeness, even the best textbooks confuse the young student with a multitude of new ideas and abstract statements. Of necessity the history teacher must make a wise selection of material, search in many books for the best presentation of each selected topic and must often invent methods of presentation. Forming images is an important process in learning history. Images are formed from the text. The teacher must test these images, correcting them when necessary with word pictures and illustrations. Strange ideas must be translated into the language of the child s experience and environment. The abstract must be illustrated by the concrete; the...
