He was regularly led to the church, to his place of honor, where he sat the supreme magistrate of his tribe, scrupulously dressed in the insignia of his office, a mammoth rosary hanging around his neck, whilst on another, held in his hands, he told his beads; always the first at the hour for prayer, the first also ever to welcome the Pallias in his missionary visitations. He was never known to speak one word of English, but his speech was of the purest and most classical ancient Indian dialect. It was part of his office to carry the cross at the head of processions and of funerals; and he never missed this part of his duty, even when his frame was tottering, his mind wandering, and his eyes blind. Woe to them had they neglected to warn him of the approaching call to duty! Amid the severest storms of snow, sleGt, and wind, under pelting rains or burning skies, his head uncovered, he walked with stately dignity and lofty bearing, supported on either side by two Indians, who from time to time would uplift his arms, like Moses of old. Glorious old man! but one limb of that grand old tree which, planted by the hands of the Father to overspread and shelter this great land, has been stripped, and hacked, and harried, and belabored to the very roots! Instead of affording the cooling shades of native vitality, it...
